Free Website Blocker for Mac 1.0 (freeware by BlazingTools Software)

Due to strict «sandboxing» limitations introduced by Apple since June 2012, the system utilities like this one cannot be published on Mac AppStore.

Application requirements: Mac OS X 10.5, Intel or Power PC.

If you have Mac OS X 10.6 or later, please find a compatible 64-bit version on our website www.blazingtools.com/free_website_blocker_mac.html

This application will block unwanted websites in most popular web browsers - using simple black lists.

Installation: copy the downloaded application into any folder and run it. You will need to enter your Administrator password to allow the program to interact with other applications.

The installation folder should be writable to save the settings. You can rename the application if you need that.

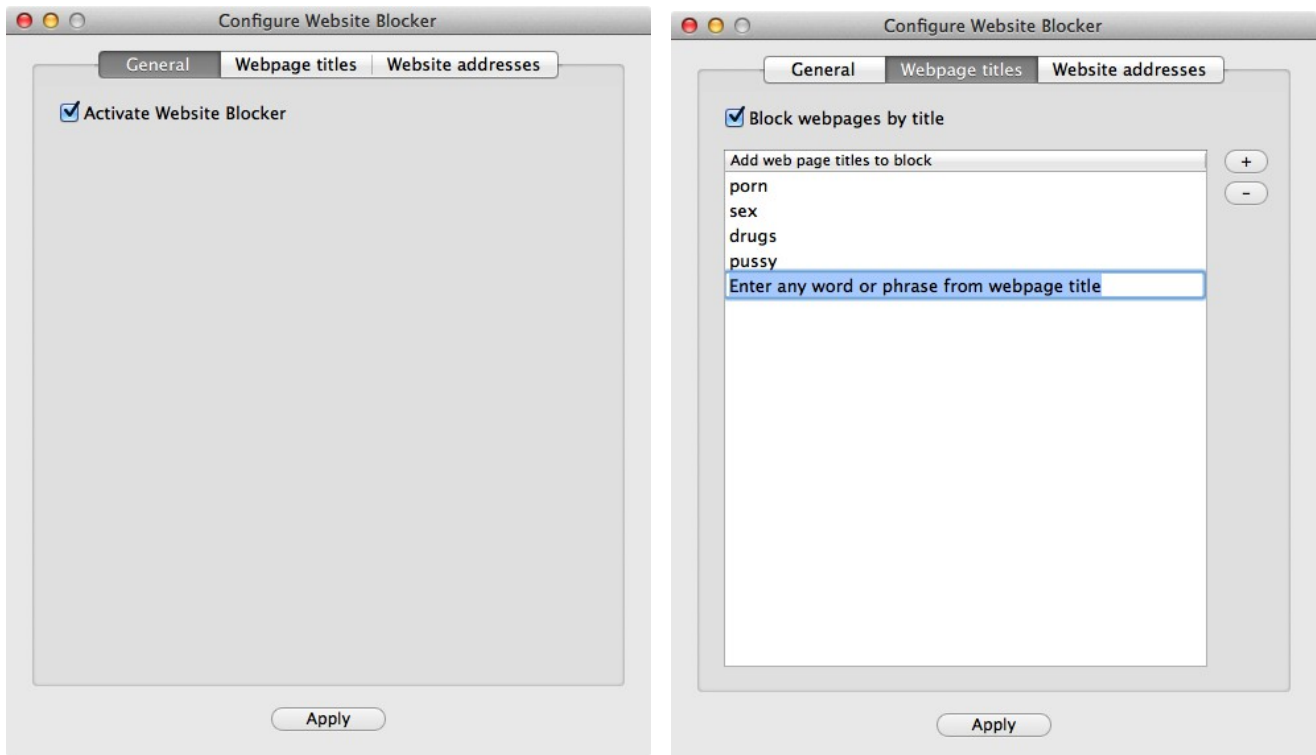

This version is working inside a single user account only, but you can use multiple copies of this application in different user accounts.

The options window will appear on the first launch, click Activate Website Blocker checkbox there. Then please edit the black lists of websites. You can block websites by address (URL) — just add any part of unwanted website address to «Webpage Addresses» list. You can also block individual webpages or different websites using keywords from web browser's title bar. Just add a word or phrase from webpage title to a black list.

If you'd like to stop the program — just double-click its icon, uncheck Activate Website Blocker checkbox and close the window.

Removal: just stop the application and delete its file.

To change the program options at any time, just find and open the application again.

If you'd like to use the same black lists of more than one Mac, just copy the application file on another Mac (it's recommended to ZIP it before copying). The settings and black lists are saved inside application's bundle.

Known limitations:

When using this website blocker with Firefox, please only use «Webpage titles» black list. Blocking by URLs is not currently supported with Firefox.
